Dear Mr Jenkins,

Today I am writing to you in your role as Chairman of the National Trust.

Over the past 120 years, the National Trust has achieved many remarkable and impressive successes throughout the UK concerning the protection and conservation of historical buildings, cultural assets, landscape parks and many more.

It is my personal intention that a similar institution is to be established in the State of Bavaria. Together with my fellow members of the Bavarian Parliament, it is our intention to launch a respective parliamentary initiative shortly after the summer break.

I would very much appreciate the opportunity to meet a representative of the National Trust in person to discuss the issues your organisation considers as most important to fulfil their tasks in the best way possible. I would therefore appreciate it if you could put me in touch with a member of staff who could arrange this.

If I may suggest a rough date for such a meeting, I would like to propose a time between 1st September and 15th September 2014.

If you have any further questions before a meeting is possible, please do not hesitate to contact me.

On behalf of the State of Bavaria and myself, I would like to thank you very much in advance for your support and the valuable first-hand insight the National Trust can provide.

Please note that we have also sent a copy of this letter to Prince Charles in his role as president of the National Trust.

Yours sincerely
